

Biography: Adriana Beatriz Carolina Reséndez Maldonado, Ing.
Mexican Section of the International Boundary and Water
Commission (CILA), Commissioner

Current Position

Foreign Minister (Marcelo) Ebrard and Roberto Velasco appointed Adriana Beatriz Carolina Reséndez. Velasco is the Foreign Ministry's director for North America. Adriana Beatriz Carolina Reséndez replaced Humberto Marengo Mogollon at the IBWC, which in Mexico is known by its acronym of CILA. The designation of Adriana Beatriz Carolina Reséndez Maldonado as Mexico's new commissioner coincided with the swearing-in of her U.S. counterpart. Adriana Beatriz Carolina Reséndez will represent her country's interests in an international agency that manages joint water resources - including water allocation, flood control and international reservoirs - and mediates boundary issues between Mexico and the United States.

Prior Experience and Education

Adriana Beatriz Carolina Reséndez has been working for the Mexican section of the IBWC for 23 years, the last three as area director. She has a bachelor's degree in civil engineering and a master's in water resources, both from the Autonomous University of Chihuahua. The Foreign Ministry is certain that the official will make use of her abilities to ensure the well-being of the border populations, as well as to guarantee the observance of Mexico's commitments within the CILA and ensure compliance with the Distribution Treaty of Waters of 1944.
