Transform Policing with Analytics and Evidence-Based Practices

November 10, 2021 - 10:00 am PT

Evidence-Based Policing allows for the use of research findings to develop those strategies that are best designed to reduce crime and disorder while maintaining the trust and confidence of the public we serve. By using intelligence gained from analytically driven approaches, the Policing profession can begin to incorporate those research findings into every decision that is made. It is important to know what works so that data can be fed into improving the outcomes for more timely and accurate decisioning. This practice will allow command staff and agents to continue the important mission in the most effective way. As importantly, you can examine actions of staff to identify those strategies that have been proven ineffective by research to ensure that you are being the best public stewards possible. Measuring Police Quality of Service

Click for details - Measuring Quality of Service Webinar

With the increasing importance of quality service and community interactions in law enforcement, the challenge for agencies is how to measure the quality of their service. It requires a multi-faceted approach that goes beyond community complaints (or the lack thereof). This discussion will cover how agencies can effectively measure service quality and respond to the community's desire for respectful, professional interactions with law enforcement without additional administrative burden on staff. Guest speakers for this event include Tejas Shastry, Co-Founder and Chief

Product Officer of Truleo, a BWC Analytics platform; Loren Atherley, Director of Performance, Analytics, and Research with Seattle Police Department; and Scott Montgomery, Law Enforcement Lead at Amazon Web Services (AWS).
