For Community Professionals and Care Providers

Adapted from: Family Infant Relationship Support Training Program (FIRST-3R) and the Newborn Individualized Developmental Care and Assessment Program (NIDCAP)

The material presented in this manual is either used with permission or adapted from the work of Dr. Heidelise Als as well as the education and training process and materials of the Newborn Individualized Developmental Care and Assessment Program (NIDCAP[®]). The materials presented do not constitute formal NIDCAP[®], Family Infant Relationship Support Training, (FIRST ©) or BABIES Adaptive Behavior Inventory (BABI©) training. The authors take full responsibility for the selection and adaptation of the materials.

Participation in workshop and subsequent use of these materials does not qualify the participant as a developmental specialist. Collaboration with appropriate medical and developmental specialists is essential in using any of the materials or information provided in the First Steps for BABIES © program.

Use of these materials and associated forms is restricted. Information and approaches included in these materials may only be used after attending an approved workshop and by written permission of the author.
